Plane crashes into New Jersey home

Miraculously, no civilians were injured in the horrific accident.

A plane crashed into a house in a suburban New Jersey neighborhood Tuesday, sparking fires in at least two homes and prompting a federal investigation.

The Federal Aviation Association said a Cessna 414 crashed into a home on Berkley Avenue in Colonia at 11 a.m. Tuesday, causing it to become engulfed in flames. Fortunately, no civilians were hurt, and only the pilot was on board during the time of the crash. It wasn't immediately clear what injuries the pilot sustained, if any. The FAA and the National Transportation Safety Board said they are investigating the cause of the crash.

There were no residents in the home when the plan came crashing down from the sky, according to NBC New York, but nearby homes were damaged, with flames lapping those buildings as well.

Images taken at the site showed massive flames and plumes of smoke engulfing the idyllic home. The town's mayor, John McCormac, told local media that the plane had settled in the basement of the house.

> "Everything was just a massive blaze. I went running down. I don't know what I thought I was going to do. Anybody who was home would not have had a chance."

"Right now we don't believe any civilians on the ground were impacted by the crash, although the pilot ... nobody knows for sure yet. Nobody has gotten close to the plane," McCormac told media shortly after the crash.

The plane was reportedly headed out of Virginia en route to a small airport in Linden, New Jersey.

Visibility was said to have dropped from 10 miles to two miles shortly before the crash. A neighbor told NBC New York that he heard a low plane before the crash.

"It sounded really low, it started to sputter a little bit," the witness told the station. "All of a sudden there was this huge explosion, or just this big bang, louder than any car crash I've ever heard."

Another witness told ABC News that the explosion "lit up the sky."

"Everything was just a massive blaze. I went running down. I don't know what I thought I was going to do. Anybody who was home would not have had a chance," he said.

A neighbor shared on Facebook that he felt "incredibly lucky" to escape the catastrophe.

"We felt the thump and panicked thinking that either a truck crashed into our house or we just experienced an earthquake. ... Praying for the pilot and the families who were affected by this," he wrote.

A tree-lined residential town, Colonia is located about 20 mile outside of New York City.

Woodbridge Township, New Jersey, spokesman John Hagerty confirmed late Tuesday that the pilot did not survive the crash. His identity has not yet been confirmed.

Illegal migration at southern border a "crisis"

REUTERS

2 Arrests at or near the U.S. border with Mexico fell to their lowest monthly total of the year in September but the fiscal year total was up 88 percent, indicating illegal immigration remained a crisis, U.S. officials said on Tuesday. The number of apprehensions and people turned away at the border fell to 52,546 in September, less than half the peak of 144,116 in May but up 4 percent from September 2018. Migration tends to taper off during the hot summer months, but U.S. officials and immigrant advocates say the Trump administration's strict immigration policies have contributed to four straight months of fewer arrests. President Trump has made restricting immigration a centerpiece of his first term. REUTERS

Federal judge blocks Alabama abortion ban

3 A federal judge blocked Alabama on Tuesday from enforcing the strictest abortion laws in the country, saying the ban on all abortions unless a mother's health was in danger was unconstitutional. Alabama Governor Kay Ivey, a Republican, had signed the bill into law in May and it was due to come into effect on Nov. 15. A Christian, she invoked God in support of the law, saying it would protect his creation, while opponents said it came at the expense of women's health and constitutional rights. Those performing abortions would be committing a felony, punishable by up to 99 years in prison. A woman who receives an abortion would not be held criminally liable. The law makes no exceptions even for rape and incest. The American Civil Liberties Union and other groups sued to overturn the law. REUTERS

Drunk, distracted drivers a concern this Halloween

AAA offers startling stats and tips for trick-or-treaters to stay safe this Halloween.

MORGAN ROUSSEAU
morgan@metro.us

With kids across the state gearing up for trick-or-treating this Thursday, AAA released scary stats that show Halloween is a statistically dangerous night for distracted and drunk driving.

Halloween is consistently one of the top three days of the year for pedestrian injuries and fatalities, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHSTA). Children are more than twice as likely to be hit by a car and killed on Halloween than any other day of the year, according to AAA.

In Pennsylvania, pedestrian fatalities increased by 34 percent in 2018, with PennDOT crash data showing 14,292 crashes involved a distracted driver. In October 2017, AAA reports, cops made 3,657 drunk driving arrests.

The combination of drinking and increased pedestrian traffic on Halloween is a deadly combination. AAA and NHSTA found that:

One-fourth of all pedestrian deaths ranging in age from 5-14 occurred in the four days leading up to Halloween (October 28-31) in 2017.

On Halloween night 2017, 89 people were fatally injured in a traffic crash, with 13 percent involving alcohol. In 2017, more than half of pedestrian fatalities on Halloween occurred with the pedestrian outside of a marked crosswalk. From 2013 – 2017, 158 people were killed in drunk-driving crashes on Halloween night From 2013 - 2017, 22 percent of pedestrian fatalities on Halloween night involved a drunk driver.

During that period, 42 percent of all people killed in motor vehicle crashes on Halloween night were in crashes involving a drunk driver. "With an increased risk of pedestrian crashes on Halloween night, AAA Mid-Atlantic urges parents to take the time to make trick-or-treaters and their costumes safer and more visible to motorists," said Jana L. Tidwell, manager of Public and Government Affairs for AAA Mid-Atlantic. "In addition, motorists must eliminate distractions, slow down and watch for children, as well as have a completely sober designated driver if drinking is part of a Halloween celebration."

Here's how trick-or-treaters can stay safe this Halloween

Parents:

Make sure Halloween costumes are flame-retardant and light in color to improve visibility.

Be bright at night – have trick-or-treaters use glow sticks or wear retro-reflective tape on costumes and on treat buckets.

Ensure that disguises don't obstruct vision, and avoid facemasks. Instead, use non-toxic face paint. Also, watch the length of billowy costumes to help avoid tripping.

Ensure any props are flexible and blunt-tipped to avoid injury from tripping or horseplay.

Ask an adult or older child to supervise children under age 12.

Instruct children to travel only in familiar areas and along established routes.

Teach children to stop only at well-lit houses and to never to enter a stranger's home or garage.

Review trick-or-treating safety precautions, including pedestrian and traffic safety rules.

Trick-or-Treaters:

Stay on sidewalks and avoid walking in streets if possible. If there are no sidewalks, walk on the left side of the road, facing traffic.

Look both ways and listen for traffic before crossing the street. Watch for cars turning or backing up.

Cross streets only at the corner, using traffic signals and crosswalks, and never cross between parked vehicles or mid-block.

Trick-or-treat in a group if someone older cannot go with you.

Tell your parents where you are going.

Carry a flashlight containing fresh batteries. Never shine flashlights into the eyes of oncoming drivers.

New U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Kelly Craft. REUTERS

U.S. pitted against Britain, France, South Africa, others at U.N. over abortion

U.S refuses terminology accepted by other U.N. nations.

The United States told the U.N. Security Council on Tuesday that it opposed references to sexual and reproductive health and the safe termination of pregnancies, pitting Washington against Britain, France, South Africa and others.

While the United States joined its 14 council counterparts to unanimously adopt a resolution on women, peace and security, U.S. Ambassador Kelly Craft said Washington was unhappy that the text mentioned previous resolutions that promote sexual and reproductive health.

"We cannot accept references to 'sexual and reproductive health,' nor any references to 'safe termination of pregnancy' or language that would promote abortion or suggest a right to abortion," she said after the vote.

The statement by Craft was the latest in a string of moves by U.S. President Donald Trump's administration against the promotion of sexual and reproductive health services by the United Nations.

"The U.N. should not put itself in a position of promoting or suggesting a right to abortion, whether it is humanitarian or development work," said Craft, who took up her role in August.

The language promoting sexual and reproductive health is long-agreed internationally, including in resolutions adopted by the Security Council in 2009 and 2013 and several resolutions adopted annually by the 193-member General Assembly.

"Women have long-argued that they should be able to control their bodies," South Africa's International Relations Minister Naledi Pandor told reporters. "It is their right to make that choice and this is recognized worldwide," Pandor said of abortions.

"It can't be that I'm a victim of sexual violence and I cannot make a choice as to my body and my reproductive rights," she said.

Britain's U.N. Ambassador Karen Pierce said sexual and reproductive health were "a vital part of public services for women in all countries and a vital part of ensuring that women can play a truly equal role in the building of their countries."

Deputy French U.N. Ambassador Anne Gueguen said council acknowledgement of sexual and reproductive health and rights was essential to helping victims of sexual violence globally.

In April, Washington threatened to veto a Security Council resolution if a reference was not cut citing the need for U.N. bodies and donors to give timely "sexual and reproductive health" assistance to survivors of sexual violence in conflict.

U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres told the Security Council on Tuesday that "sexual and gender-based violence continues to be used as a weapon of war, with the survivors of such violence often left without justice or support."

"This year alone, millions of women and girls were in need of life-saving sexual and reproductive health services, and millions more required interventions to prevent sexual and gender-based violence," he said.

The Trump administration cut funding in 2017 for the U.N. Population Fund because it said it "supports, or participates in the management of, a program of coercive abortion or involuntary sterilization." The U.N. said that was an inaccurate perception. REUTERS

UK truck deaths reignite calls to tackle nail bar slavery

The deaths of 39 migrants found in a refrigerated truck in Britain has reignited calls for efforts to tackle slavery in the nail bar sector, a common destination for trafficked Vietnamese.

Most of the people discovered in the truck are believed to be from Vietnam, one of the top source countries for victims of modern slavery in Britain - accounting for about 10% of 7,000 suspected slaves referred to the government for support in 2018.

Police are still investigating the case and it is not yet clear why the victims were travelling to Britain.

But it is well documented that some Vietnamese - lured to Europe by promises of lucrative jobs - end up exploited in illegal cannabis farms and cheap nail bars which have proliferated across the country.

"It's an extreme tragedy and I think hopefully it will be a catalyst for some sort of change," said Philippa Southwell, a lawyer with Birds Solicitors who specialises in trafficking.

"(We need) tighter regulation in various sectors such as cash-in-hand nail bars and car washes where it is easy for exploitation to take place," she said, adding that nail salons were often used to launder proceeds from criminal activity.

Although many nail bars set up by Britain's Vietnamese community are legitimate, experts say traffickers have piggybacked off their success.

Anti-slavery charity Unseen said labor exploitation at beauty salons was the second biggest concern after carwashes for callers to its hotline last year, with 477 potential victims.

Britain's anti-slavery chief said on Tuesday that most recommendations made by her office in 2017 on tackling the issue - including regulation of nail bars - had not been implemented.

Trafficking experts said the deaths, which were discovered on Oct. 23, should be a "clarion call" for stronger action to protect trafficking victims and called for tighter controls including more labor inspections.

Northern Irish truck driver Maurice Robinson appeared in court on Monday accused of manslaughter, money laundering, conspiracy to traffic people and conspiracy to assist unlawful immigration.

In 2017, Britain's former anti-slavery commissioner Kevin Hyland called for tighter regulation of nail bars in a report on combating trafficking involving Vietnamese nationals.

One victim quoted in his report worked seven days a week for 30 pounds ($40). Another had to give all his money to his enslavers who locked him up between shifts.

> "It's an extreme tragedy and I think hopefully it will be a catalyst for some sort of change."
> Philippa Southwell

Hyland said Britain should look at New York which had introduced controls on nail bars.

His successor Sara Thornton said the majority of the report's 35 recommendations had not been implemented.

"Although we don't yet know the full details of this case, it appears to bear the hallmarks of human trafficking," she told the Thomson Reuters Foundation.

"My office will be looking at what more can be done to improve our response to this heinous crime and reviewing the outstanding recommendations of this report will be an important part of this."

The interior ministry could not immediately comment.

The British Association of Beauty Therapy and Cosmetology (BABTAC) said there was an urgent need for regulation, ideally by an independent industry body.

BABTAC, which launched a campaign two years ago with Unseen to raise awareness of exploitation in nail bars, said it would also like to see a mandatory code and labor inspections.

But others said there was no need for an independent body.

"If the prices are too cheap it makes you wonder why they're so cheap," said one customer. REUTERS

Re-done, re-opened and delicious

The Cambridge re-opened their doors with a fresh look and all new menu.

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

South Street hotspot The Cambridge has officially re-opened its doors with fresh decor and an all-new menu, and everyone is invited out to indulge in the latest tasty offerings the popular eatery has to offer.

Owners Heather Annechiarico and Chris Fetfatzes wanted to re-open the restaurant in anticipation of the opening of its companion, the Wine Dive (coming later this year.) "We wanted to take The Cambridge to the next level with a new direction for our kitchen, a new menu, a new bar program, renovated exterior work, embellishments in our lush garden, and a brand new dining room," said Fetfatzes in a release.

The new additions include an updated look that transports hungry Philadelphians to modern-day Soho London for an elevated vibe. The Cambridge has always boasted a welcoming atmosphere, but now the eatery is chic and comfortable with darker tones and textures, dimly lit candles at night, an open floor plan, lounge-style dinner seating, London-inspired accent pieces, and a renovated seating wall against where the new Wine Dive will be. According to the release, a new door connecting The Cambridge to Wine Dive for when it opens was also installed - this will allow customers to go from concept to concept without having to leave the establishment.

"We have talked for years about opening up the dining room," added Fetfatzes. "The layout before worked when we opened and was very popular but it created these cozy sections of people that couldn't see each other. It was also a tight fit and felt compact when you entered. The new layout brings the whole space to a new level - and there's a greater connectedness of the restaurant to the bar. Instead of having all these separate spaces, there's a great new energy."

The exterior also got a makeover, including The Cambridge's backyard garden with fire pits, overhead lights and even more lush plants to help set the ambiance.

In addition to the restaurant's fresh look comes an all-new menu from Executive Chef Derek Cantwell and an updated cocktail list. Chef Cantwell used fresh ingredients to provide dishes that are more shareable and health-driven while still offering an incredibly flavorful combination for any palette.

"Chef Cantwell's menu takes a new direction as we look to cater to the changing demographics around us on South Street West and in Graduate Hospital Neighborhood," said Fetfatze. "We are proud of the entrees and pub fare of the former menu, but we want to take things to the next level. The menu now features more flavors from around the country and around the world - and there will be more diversity. One thing that hasn't changed, though, is the warm welcoming vibe." New menu high-

5 brands that bet on universal sizes

Although there is a system that seems universal, these companies are not afraid of going deeper into inclusiveness. LUZ LANCHEROS MWN

Indochino

Although in many countries it is normal to go to a tailor who makes suits for men, for others that system changes, especially when it comes to getting custom-made pieces in men's clothing. Created in Canada and with offices in China, the brand allows customers to make any piece to their taste and size online. Prices range from $80 to $280, due to the costs and time it takes to find the exact requirements of the buyer.

11 Honoré

One of the biggest complaints constantly made about the fashion industry is about designer garments of big brands for big sizes. 11 Honoré brings together creators such as Christian Siriano (who dresses Hollywood celebrities of large sizes), as well as Altuzarra, Ganni, Dolce & Gabanna, Roland Mouret and Mary Katrantzou, among others, with proposals ranging up to size 24. They also have personalized services for clients. Being a website featuring luxury brands, the pieces can cost up to $2k.

eShakti

This retailer is responsible for customizing the preferred measures of each consumer they work with. With a wide and diverse range of offerings, customers are able to determine the length of the dress, sleeves and the width of the garments. Sizes range from XS to 6X (with their respective size specifications in numbers; the system also asks for the customer's height). Piece prices ofrange from $30 to $100+.

Reformation

They also focus on the complexities involved in size categorizations. It takes Reformation a month to make a dress. The company is also entirely sustainable when it comes to the use of fibers (Tencel and Econyl, as well as recycled ones). Reformation covers sizes petite to plus, as well as sizes C and DD in underwear, in capsule collections. The pieces tend to range between $300-$1k.

Universal Standard

They are revolutionaries of stature focusing on fitting. They started in 2015 and by the next year, opened a showroom. Universal Standard's hiring process is as transparent as what they want to show the brand: ideal for all sizes (00-40). They have already collaborated with J Crew, Adidas and Rodarte and helped consumers with different platforms. The products are a bit more expensive than the average product because of the workmanship needed that allows the products to look good for all bodies.

A New Sex Pill Takes the Spotlight as the Viagra Patent is About to Expire

A patented pill costing less than $1 a dose stands to help millions of men with failing sex lives; no prescription will be required

By Ray Wilson
Associated Health Press

AHP – A new sex pill is set to take the spotlight with the Viagra patent about to expire. But unlike the former, it won't require a prescription and is priced just under a $1 a dose.

The new pill called Vesele is part of a new class of performance enhancers for men, which work instantaneously on the body and mind triggering arousal and firmer, harder erections.

Formulated with a special compound known as an "accelerator", Vesele can transport its active ingredients faster and more efficiently into the blood stream, where it begins to work its magic.

The patented ingredient blend initiates a process known as vasodilation, which causes arteries and vessels throughout the body to expand. This allows blood to flow directly to penis and genitals, resulting in harder erections which last longer. Cialis and Viagra are based around a simlilar concept.

But what makes Vesele so remarkable, and what these other sex pills can't do, is that also directs a small portion of this blood flow to the brain, which creates feelings of intense arousal. In laymen's terms, users become incredibly excited and turned on.

This is why the makers of Vesele say their pill has worked so effectively in clinical trials. It stimulates the two most important organs for great sex, the penis and the brain.

The Brain Erection Connection

Until now, medical researchers did not fully understand the brain-erection connection. It has now been made clear with Vesele. When both are supplied with a constant blood flow, men are harder and firmer for longer...and have unbelievable sex drives.

"Most of the research and treatment methods for men's sexual failures have focused on physiological factors and have neglected the emotional ones. For the leading sex drugs to work, like Cialis and Viagra, you need visual stimulation" explains Dr. Henry Esber, the creator of Vesele.

"And although they work for some men, the majority experience absolutely no fulfillment during sex.

According to research published by the National Institute of Health, 50% of men taking these drugs stop responding or can't tolerate their side effects...and on top of that they spend $50 per pill and it doesn't even work half the time.

This is what makes Vesele so different and effective. It floods the blood stream with key ingredients which cause arteries all over the body to expand. The patented accelerator speeds up this process even more.

The result is a rush of blood flow to the penis and brain, helping to create an impressive erection and a surging desire for sex. Often, this is all men need to get going. And when taken regularly, many men say they are energized and aroused all day."

Great Sex At Any Age

With the conclusion of their latest human clinical use survey trial, Dr. Esber and his team are now offering Vesele in the US. And regardless of the market, its sales are exploding.

Men across the country are eager to get their hands on the new pill and according to the research, they should be.

In the trial above, as compared to baseline, men taking Vesele saw a staggering 85% improvement in erection hardness over a four-month period. Their erections also lasted twice as long.

These same men also experienced an astounding 82% increase in the desire for sex (libido/sex drive) and an even greater improvement in overall satisfaction and ability to satisfy their partners.

Many men taking Vesele described feeling horny and aroused through the day. The anticipation before sex was amazing. They were also easily turned on. Their moods were more upbeat and positive, too.

Faster Absorption into the Blood Stream

Vesele is made up of three specialized ingredients: two clinical strength vasodilators and a patented absorption enhancer often called an accelerator. According to an enormous amount of clinical data, each is very safe.

Research shows that with age, many men lose their desire and interest in sex. They also struggle to produce an erection firm enough for penetration.

And although there are many theories as to why this happens (including a loss in testosterone) one thing is certain, inadequate blood flow is virtually always to blame. That's why sex drug manufacturers focus on blood flow, it makes your erection hard.

But what's more surprising, and what these manufacturers have failed to consider, is that lack of blood flow can also kill your sex drive. That's because blood supplies energy for the brain. This energy is required for creating brainwaves that cause excitability and arousal.

Studies show the Vesele stimulates the entire cardiovascular system, including the arteries that lead to both the brain and penis. The extreme concentration of the ingredients combined with the accelerator ensures that this process starts quickly.

Expiring Patent Opens the Door to a New Sex Pill: Vesele is a new pill that cost just $1 a dose does not require a prescription. It works on both body and mind to increase arousal and erection hardness.

The sexual benefits of Vesele are also multiplied as its ingredients build up in the system over time. This is why many men take it every single day.

Recent Studies Show Positive Effects on Women

In the same study referenced throughout, Vesele was also shown to have an amazing (and somewhat surprising) effect on women too. That's because the same arteries and vessels that carry blood and oxygen to the brain and genitals are the same in men and women.

"In our most recent study, women taking Vesele saw a stunning 52% improvement in arousal and sex drive. Perhaps more impressive, they also experienced a 57% improvement in lubrication.

You can imagine why some couples are taking Vesele together. Everything feels better. Everything works better. Everyone performs better. It's truly amazing."

A New Frontier of Non-Prescription Sex Pills

With daily use, Vesele is helping men (and women) restore failing sex lives and overcome sexual lets downs without side effect or expense.

Through a patented absorption enhancer, the Vesele formula hits the bloodstream quickly, resulting in phenomenal improvements in erection firmness and hardness. By boosting blood flow to the brain, users also experience sexual urges and arousal they often haven't felt in years.

Where to Find Vesele

This is the official release of Vesele in Pennsylvania. As such, the company is offering a special discounted supply to any reader who calls within the next 48 hours.

A special hotline number and discounted pricing has been created for all Pennsylvania residents. Discounts will be available starting today at 6:00AM and will automatically be applied to all callers.

The last time we took a look at NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year odds, Giants quarterback Daniel Jones had +200 odds to win the thing – ahead of even Cardinals quarterback Kyler Murray.

The New York media did a solid job selling Jones' stock at the time, but it seems somewhat silly now that Jones would take home the award given what we've seen from him over the past month.

Murray, meanwhile, now looks like a lock to win NFL Offensive ROY as he has put up phenomenal numbers for a rookie and has the Cardinals still somewhat in the playoff mix with a 3-4-1 record. Here are the latest odds at MetroBet.us/Sugar:

Kyler Murray +150
Josh Jacobs +175
Gardner Minshew +350
Daniel Jones +1600
Marquise Brown +2000
Terry McLaurin +2000
DK Metcalf +2500
David Montgomery +2500
Miles Sanders +3300

It's likely too late for Sanders to make a run despite his breakout performance this past Sunday against the Bills.

For instance, Jacobs (who we loved a month ago at +800) has already accumulated 620 yards on the ground with four TDs. He also has 102 yards of receiving in Jon Gruden's offense.

Sanders, meanwhile, has 294 yards rushing with just one TD on the season. He has also caught 19 balls for 274 yards receiving.

Things will likely trend positively for Sanders the rest of the way, but Murray and Jacobs have too far of a lead when it comes to pure numbers.

The play: $10 on Murray, Jacobs

The Texans have won three straight contests against the Jaguars (average score of 17.7 to 7.3) and eight of their last 10. Deshaun Watson has been dynamite over his last four overall starts, completing nearly 73 percent of his passes for 8.7 yards per attempt with a 9-4 TD-INT ratio. He draws a favorable matchup with Jacksonville's 14th-rated pass stoppers by yards allowed per game.

The Jags should not expect much from running back Leonard Fournette in this game as he meets Houston's fourth-ranked run stoppers. Gardner Minshew will be hard-pressed to out-duel Watson through the air.

The Texans are 6-1-1 against the spread in their last eight games following a spread loss, per Covers.com, while the Jaguars are 2-5 against the spread in their last seven games following a win.

Eagles stand pat as uneventful NFL trade deadline passes

The Eagles had some needs to address but did not get anything done on Tuesday.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Eagles GM Howie Roseman was quiet on Tuesday as the NFL trade deadline passed at 4 p.m. ET. GETTY IMAGES

The Philadelphia Eagles stood pat on Tuesday at the expiration of the NFL trade deadline, which came and went at 4 p.m. ET.

It was a surprising display of inactivity on the final day from Eagles general manager Howie Roseman, seeing as it was a prime opportunity for the organization to address some key holes in the roster.

Over the past few weeks, a need for depth acquisitions at the wide receiver, defensive tackle, and cornerback spots became apparent.

Granted, the necessity to acquire a cornerback at the deadline was muted somewhat with the return of Jalen Mills and Ronald Darby, who performed well against the upstart Buffalo Bills on Sunday.

Avonte Maddox and Cre'Veon Leblanc are also slated to return to the Eagles' ranks, as well.

Still, the Eagles reportedly inquired about Denver Broncos cornerback Chris Harris Jr., though the asking price was believed to be very high. Roseman never made an offer and Harris was not dealt.

The Eagles did make a move on Monday to add some pass-rushing help along the defensive line, acquiring outside linebacker/defensive end Genard Avery from the Cleveland Browns.

The 24-year-old is expected to rotate with Brandon Graham and Derek Barnett to supply some relief if the defense is caught out for too long.

Avery posted 4.5 sacks in 18 games with Cleveland.

Philadelphia's most important need that went unaddressed at the deadline was the presence of a quick wide receiver to pose a legitimate outside threat.

Carson Wentz's offense has lagged at times without veteran pass-catcher DeSean Jackson, who has missed the past six games with an abdominal injury.

While he is slated to return to practice this week and possibly even suit up this weekend against the Chicago Bears, the Eagles were still on the market looking for another option for Wentz.

Robby Anderson of the New York Jets remained a prime target for the Eagles, who were interested in acquiring 26-year-old last season as well. The price for Anderson was believed to be a third-round draft pick.

The Eagles' inactivity on deadline day was not a rarity.

In fact, just one trade went down on Tuesday — a rather anticlimactic turn of events given the number of rumors that flew around the football world throughout the past few weeks.

The Miami Dolphins acquired Aqib Talib from the Los Angeles Rams for a draft pick.

The team that was poised to be the most aggressive on deadline day was the New York Jets, who dangled a pair of stars on the trade market.

Per reports, the Kansas City Chiefs and Houston Texans called former Eagles VP of player personnel and now Jets GM, Joe Douglas, asking about the availability of running back Le'Veon Bell.

After he was pulled off the market, a deal for Pro-Bowl safety Jamal Adams gained considerable steam with the Eagles NFC East-rivals, the Dallas Cowboys, as the lead suitor.

While a move temporarily looked likely, the Jets' high asking price for the 24-year-old defensive back was not met.

Sixers, T'Wolves clash in battle of unbeatens

Minnesota visits the Wells Fargo Center tonight.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

The Philadelphia 76ers are the last unbeaten team in the Eastern Conference, winning their first three games of the 2019-20 season.

It's just the kind of start the team with Eastern Conference title aspirations were looking for as the early returns are more than promising.

Entering the season, the Sixers were considered to have the strongest starting five in the entire league despite shipping Jimmy Butler to the Miami Heat for Josh Richardson.

The shooting guard has seamlessly worked his way into a starting group that returned Ben Simmons, Tobias Harris, and Joel Embiid while adding Al Horford in free agency.

All five starters are averaging at least 13 points per game with Embiid leading the way with 25.5 points and 13.0 rebounds in 28 minutes per game — the lowest average playing time amongst the starting five.

While the focus has been on how the starting unit has jelled offensively, it's the 76ers' defense that has been especially impressive so far.

Two of the game's best centers face off tonight as Joel Embiid tries to slow down Karl-Anthony Towns. GETTY IMAGES

They rank seventh in points allowed per game while making it a nightmare for the opposition to score down low. The Sixers are are averaging five blocks per game and are fifth in defensive rebounding.

Embiid was expected to be a defensive force as he leads the Sixers with two blocks per game, but Richardson is right behind him with 1.7 swats per contest — a surprising figure considering the 6-5 guard never averaged more than 0.9 blocks in a season.

Wednesday night brings a home matchup against the 3-0 Minnesota Timberwolves (7 p.m. ET), who already boast Eastern Conference triumphs over the Brooklyn Nets, Charlotte Hornets and Miami Heat.

They're also built similarly to the 76ers.

Center Karl-Anthony Towns has been a man possessed to start the season, averaging 32 points per game while Andrew Wiggins is the main supporter with 20.7 points per game.

They're the two biggest threats in an offense that ranks fifth in the NBA, averaging 121.3 points per outing.

Defensively, the Timberwolves are just as aggressive as the 76ers, averaging 10.7 steals per game, 0.7 more than Philadelphia. However, they lack the strength down low to bully their opposition, which could mean another big night for Embiid.

horoscopes

♈ Aries Look at the broader scope of a situation and expand your knowledge and plans. A move or personal change is supported.

♉ Taurus Implement change. It's up to you to strive to make your dreams come true. A meaningful relationship should be instrumental to helping you reach your goal.

♊ Gemini Someone will send you mixed messages regarding a relationship. When in doubt, ask direct questions.

♋ Cancer Personal gains can be made, along with physical improvements and professional progress. Your innovative way of handling responsibilities will give you the edge you need to get ahead.

♌ Leo If you express your intentions, you will get the feedback you need to forge ahead. Opportunity knocks, and though not everyone will be happy with your choices, what's right for you should take precedence.

♍ Virgo Don't let emotions overwhelm you. A practical outlook will help you overcome any pitfall you face. Moderation will ward off a costly mistake.

♎ Libra Size up a personal situation and make financial adjustments that will help ease stress and lower your overhead. Learn from the experience and save for the future.

♏ Scorpio An open mind and a keen imagination will bring about positive change. If you tighten your relationship with people who can help you achieve your dreams, new opportunities will sprout.

♐ Sagittarius Enthusiasm can be useful, but don't be gullible. Someone's rags-to-riches tale may sound exciting, but don't buy into someone else's dream. Stick to what you know.

♑ Capricorn A steady pace will lead to a positive change. If you let anxiety surface, it will hinder what you are trying to achieve.

♒ Aquarius Look at your schedule, finances and responsibilities before you make promises. Concentrate on gaining more stability and long-term security. Don't let anyone take you for granted.

♓ Pisces Go over agreements and make adjustments. Equality will be the deciding factor as to the outcome and longevity of a partnership. Honesty and transparency are mandatory. EUGENIA LAST
